#ACS2025

IETA

Dirk Forrister
President & CEO
International Emissions Trading Association (IETA)

Dear Colleagues,

Welcome to Bangkok ! Welcome to the Asia Climate Summit!

It seems as though every year when we gather for the ACS there is a lot at stake for carbon markets, and this year is no different. Amid continuing geopolitical turmoil there has been a retreat in some quarters from long-standing commitments, but as we're confident you'll find from the conversation this week, carbon markets remain healthy, busy and optimistic for the longer term.

Carbon markets mobilised over $100 billion in climate finance around the world in 2024, consolidating around higher quality carbon credit instruments. Importantly, thanks to new and expanded carbon market programmes, with over 28% of global GHG emissions covered by carbon pricing.

Asia has a very full agenda related to carbon markets. Across the region countries are stepping up to take on the challenge of cutting GHG, and most are embracing the power of markets to help them achieve this goal. This year has seen compliance markets start to take shape around the region, and we'll take this opportunity to look at how different national markets are developing, how they differ and how they are similar.

Carbon markets can often have impacts far beyond their borders. The last few years has seen intense debate around the EU's Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism, and while other countries are also either planning or considering their own versions, Europe's is the most advanced. This year's summit will share experiences from companies in Asia who are already grappling with the CBAM rules.

We will also look in depth at the voluntary carbon markets (VCM), and how this complex matrix of international and national systems can restore trust and confidence after a period of difficulties.

And of course we'll look ahead to COP30 in Belém, providing detailed guidance on the main implementation milestones and participation requirements for Article 6.4, and how Article 6 mechanisms can work alongside voluntary and domestic compliance markets to support greater climate ambition. With a vast climate finance gap, we will explore how ETSS, VCM and Article 6 can support the mobilisation of finance into impactful climate action in developing countries.

The sheer breadth of attendance from representatives of business and government from across Asia, demonstrates the enthusiasm and commitment with which Asia-Pacific countries are embracing market mechanisms. We're confident you'll find plenty of material to derive business opportunities, inspiration and knowledge from this year's Asia Climate Summit, and we look forward to this week's discussion!

Best,

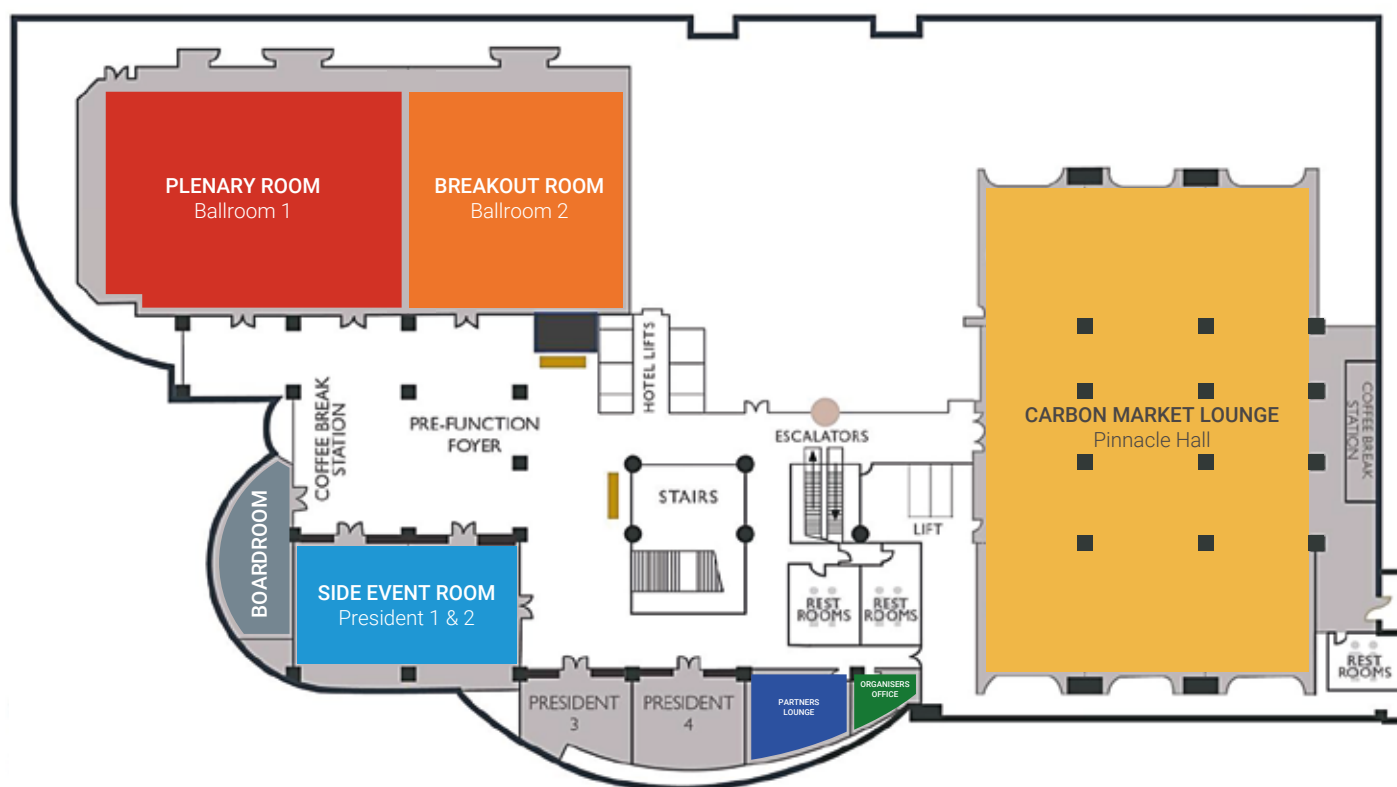

Dirk Forrister
